The St. Louis Republic may find that it doesn't pay to interfere with family affairs.

Two deaths and thirteen fresh cases of cholera are reported from the boats at New York quarantine.

The Laredo News says that protection is good food if a man happens to get the piece of bread that is buttered.

The Houston Post is now under going the process of being patted on the head and called a good boy by Hogg organs.

The Laredo papers report the transportation of seven cars of cement from England through Laredo into Mexico.

When Terrell in debate with Crain at Victoria began to abuse the latter personally, he "got off on the wrong foot." The good people of Victoria are staunch friends of Crain and will not listen to any thing of the kind. Terrell will make no friends in Southwest Texas by indulging in personal abuse of Crain.

It is certainly a great hardship on those passengers on the infected ships at New York quarantine to be detained on board. Although now in good health it must be almost certain that they too will be stricken with the plague, whereas if removed to an uninfected vessel they might be kept in quarantine in safety to themselves and entail no danger to the country.

SENATOR COKE is on the warpath, but by his unwise tactics will probably do Hogg's cause more harm than good. The use of invective and of scornful denunciation far from winning converts to a cause, but strengthens men in their opposition to it. The senator need not think to whip Clark's followers into Hogg's ranks with the lash of invective. No; they are men of brains; men who listen to reason, but who are untouched by the ravings of a maddened politician.

DEMOCRATIC CHANCES

Hon. J. H. McLeary of San Antonio, recently returned from the East, whither he went as one of the notification committee selected by the Chicago convention. Speaking of the chances of democratic success in New York, he is reported as follows:

"I made a special study of affairs in New York, and I did so because of the reports concerning disaffection there, and found that the very elements which were said to have been disaffected were solidly united. Tammany is a unit, and all of the democratic leaders of the state of New York are in accord. The disaffection is among the republicans. Platt, Fassett and other leaders are not only sulking, but are letting the republicans know it. I think the prospect of democratic success is as good if not better than in 1884."

Gen. McLeary is a lawyer of prominence throughout the state and a man upon whose judgment one may rely.

The Clark leaders are making a desperate effort to capture the republican vote. Now, in all fairness, is there an honest democrat who honestly believes, in case the Clark leaders succeed, that the republicans will be lending their strength to help the cause of Democracy? Have republicans ever been known to make such a sacrifice?—Corpus Christi Caller.

The republicans, as a party, have no hope of success, therefore they have nothing to sacrifice, and all Texans, no matter of what political faith, may be supposed to have the best interest of the state at heart. Naturally, a republican would believe a governor at the republican persuasion the best thing for Texas, but knowing this to be beyond reach, and believing the election of a certain man to be harmful to the state, they will use their strength to oppose him. It may be to them but choosing the lesser of two evils, but it is a desire for the state's best welfare that prompts it. It is no disgrace but rather an honor if our political opponents so honor our nominee as to cast their votes for him. In some people's minds patriotism ranks higher than Hoggism.

WHILE Governor Hogg is making campaign speeches and answering questions, will he please explain why so many bills passed by the 22nd legislature became laws without his signature? And why his two pet bills, the alien land law and commission law would not stand a close judicial scrutiny. It must be painfully apparent to even his most ardent supporters that as chief executive, Hogg is a dismal failure.

A CHOLERA bacillus magnified 5000 times appears an eighth of an inch in diameter. Imagine so small a thing working such dreadful destruction. In Russia over 150,000 deaths have been caused by these tiny creatures, if creatures they may be called, and in other European countries also thousands have fallen under the scourge.

THE TEXAS farmer who raises hogs for market generally has a well filled pocketbook.—Corpus Christi Caller.

This is a good item for the Texas farmer to paste in his hat. When our farmers learn to plant food crops and raise hogs an era of prosperity will dawn upon them.

HOUSTON POST: A "merry war" is in progress in New York between Kunnel John A. Cockerill of the Morning Advertiser and Deacon Shepard of the Evening Mail and Express. The Kunnel had been a democratic editor for a good many years, but in order to hold his job on the Morning Advertiser, which was recently purchased by two republicans, he began to write republican editorials and, having got started, he tried to out herod Herod. The way he sailed into southern bulldozers and flaunted the bloody shirt made Elder Shepard green with envy and, when he couldn't stand it any longer he began to sail into the Kunnel without gloves. It is a pretty fight as it stands, but thus far no blood has been spilt.

A Trio of Washita Indians who saw a printing-press the other day for the first time were Young Man with Nothing Down the Back of His Neck, Old Bull Thunder with a Cross Eye and Crazy Horse with a Sore Head. It was only an old Washington hand-press that they saw, but they declared it "heap fine."—Corpus Christi Caller.

Were the three christened before or after encountering the press? The effects of the press sometimes have a tendency to produce cross-eyed old bull-thunders, and sore-heads and frequently remove all the stiffness from a young man's neck.

THE Chicago Inter Ocean traces the cause of our labor troubles to a spirit of democracy. It says: The cause of American labor is that "much demands more." Labor lays claim to a larger share of the profit that accrues from the joint operations of labor and capital. It now gets a larger share than it elsewhere receives. But here, in a spirit of true democracy, it insists upon what it considers to be the equity of the case, and demands readjustment of the terms of what it considers to be a partnership.

REV. SAM SMALL was shot through the thigh on the 5th, instant for attempting to make a prohibition address at Vincennes, Indiana. A mob broke up the meeting and the reverend Sam was shot. He sacrificed a tooth in the same cause not long since. The prohibitionists should canonize the gentleman.

ACCORDING to the Honorable Duncan, Clark's supporters are the scum of democracy. After going on record thus, the H. D. tried to crawl out of it. Now, according to the Honorable Coke, the same men are traitors to their country. We will watch with interest for the senator to perform the crawling act.

INFORMATION has been received at headquarters of persons attempting to evade quarantine by landing from foreign vessels outside the established ports of entry. As a result a strict guard will be kept up along the entire United States seaboard.

BUFFALO has a Polish saloon-keeper named Brzpskak. His teacher never cautioned him about his vowels and he dropped them.—Galveston News.

He should be called Pi for short.

THE Hoggites add insult to injury by stealing the third party silver plank, and then calling Nugent a "so-called Jeffersonian democrat."
